What Living As A Resident Can Teach Long-Term Care Staff: The Power Of Empathy To Transform Care

Synopsis

Transform staff relationships with residents and caregiving practices in your care setting by implementing this innovative person-centered program, which places you in the shoes of your residents. Through the Looking Glass invites staff to experience first-hand the challenges residents face by actually living as a resident. Staff simulate a diagnosis during their stay and are encouraged to keep a journal of what they learned. The resulting lessons of greater empathy, compassion, and understanding create better caregivers, improve care practices, and enhance quality of life and well-being, for both staff and residents. This guide provides tips for how to set up the program in your care setting, as well as ways to address high turnover through the hiring and orientation process. Measurable benefits of this program have included eliminating personal body alarms, decreased falls, reduced use of psychotropic drugs, and increased staff retention and satisfaction.
