Paul Holland has enjoyed nearly four decades as a train conductor on three American railroads while striving to find humor in all situations. The author also served for over twenty years as the elected secretary of two rail unions. In his capacity as a train conductor, he has been interviewed by 60 Minutes and many news organizations. He was even interviewed on multiple occasions by NASA in regard to train screw-ups and was videotaped for an early MTV music video. He has been featured in many news stories and articles over his memorable career.

This book is especially good in my opinion. I have personally worked alongside the Author for most of the years he has written about. His insights and observations are delightfully accurate and fun to look back and reflect upon. If you, the reader haven't been made aware, he has also given untold time and devotion to being one of our most respected and beloved leaders. Congratulations my friend on being published and for crossing the finish line, class of 79.

This is a truly enjoyable book to read. Mr. Holland's stories are funny and told in a way that almost anyone can understand. If you're frequent train rider as I am, they really come to life. If it weren't for my past history in other endeavors where some similar situations can arise, I'd find that some of his adventures would stretch my credibility. But having been where I've been and done what I've done, I can believe every story. Enjoy reading it and try, just try to put it down occasionally. See if you can!

Not all the action takes place on the head end or caboose. We humans can make life interesting and challenging at the same time

It was funny and realistic at the same time, a good read.

Great stories about the railroads around New York City

It was good reading.

Great read, lots of funny stories that any passenger conductor can relate to. Also for for non railroaders to know what conductors go through.,

Wonderful ! I read it in one night. Over the years as a commuter on one of Paul's trains I've heard many of theses stories (but not all) reading them made me smile at memories and laugh because they were so true.
