This proven resource for studying the most established of human institutions is well known among college and seminary faculty, pastors, and Christian counselors. The fourth edition has been updated to address current family-related issues and refined to reflect teaching practices for the contemporary classroom.

Praise for Previous Editions

"An excellent resource for marriage and family studies in the church and in academia. Few texts come close to this one in blending the biblical ideal with the contemporary scene."--Theological Educator

"This is a rare book in its synthesis of rich sources in family scientific theory with a theological vision of the meaning and purpose of the family. I consider this book an excellent resource for preachers and teachers and an obvious choice for a text in family studies in a Christian college."--Calvin Theological Journal

"Every sociologist who teaches courses on marriage and the family or who engages in personal or family counseling ought to read this stimulating book. Many will conclude that it is the best textbook for college, seminary, and marriage preparation courses."--Christian Sociological Society Newsletter

"As a consequence of [the Balswicks'] theological foundation, presentation of major sociological perspectives of the family, and integrating visualizations, The Family is a most helpful resource for understanding the modern family."--Review and Expositor

"No other book has been written [on family living] from a Christian perspective with as much care as this one by the Balswicks. . . . Christian workers anxious to update their libraries with one readable yet pertinent book on family concerns will want to add this book and refer to it frequently."--Reformed Review"This Christian perspective on the contemporary home . . . is skillfully written and extremely insightful. Almost everything a person would like to know about the family and its many stages, functions, and problems is included."--Evangelical Beacon"An excellent text . . . from a distinctively Christian perspective, integrating the very best of theology, ethics, and biblical studies with the social sciences and clinical perspectives."--Southwestern Journal of Theology

Jack O. Balswick (PhD, University of Iowa) is senior professor of sociology and family development at Fuller Theological Seminary in Pasadena, California.

This is a thorough, well-supported, well-researched, and well-written textbook that crosses subject boundaries between psychology, sociology, and theology. There are useful chart break-downs of key concept which I plan to enlarge and post on the walls of my Biblical Counseling practice, I have cited this book many times in my coursework and keep it as a reference text. There are several useful summaries of modern and historical family therapy theories presented from the words of their founders and then discussed from a Biblical perspective, detailed discussions on how to deal with mobile and re-joining and blended families, and a separation of marriage and family concepts and priorities, all laid out in clear, topical, essays. I highly recommend this text to any Christian or Biblical counselor, pastor, elder, or lay-elder or family ministry officer.

A lot of information to get through, but extremely informative. Arrived on time and in great condition.

The Family by The Balswick`s, provides a thorough assessment of the family unit within a Christian context. This textbook can definitely serve as a manual for those who work with families as their vocation, calling or ministry. The strategies provided are well grounded and practical for individuals, families, churches and communities ready to dig in and do the work required to support, restore and rebuild families.

Great book to read, gives wonderful perspectives on different views beyond Christians to understand others better.

Good Resource, very informative

I love the book.

As expected.

Very informational book.
