Customer Reviews

I never write product reviews, but I am so disgusted with this product that I feel I need to express it. First of all, it's basically a brochure. It's maybe 1/8" thick. That surprised me, but I was still fine with it, until I started reading it. After the first couple typos, I began wondering about the credentials of the author. I kept reading. After finding several more typos, including things that any spell check would catch ("theair" instead of "their") and countless incorrect words ("why" instead of "while"), this author lost all credibility with me. I searched for the bio. If someone is going to write a "book" such as this, it seems they should be educated in the field. It isn't a personal story. It's written as though the author has education and experience regarding the topic. Clearly, this person does not. Grammar and punctuation issues aside, the content is incredibly lame and poorly expressed. How can you trust the information on such an important subject when the author isn't educated enough to spell even simple words correctly and also expresses the content as though it's a junior high essay? Unbelievable.
