Living Well And Dying Faithfully: Christian Practices For End-of-Life Care

Synopsis

Living Well and Dying Faithfully explores how Christian practices â• love, prayer, lament, compassion, and so on â• can contribute to the process of dying well. Working on the premise that one dies the way one lives, the book is unique in its constructive dialogue between theology and medicine as offering two complementary modes of care.

John Swinton is professor of practical theology and pastoral care at the University of Aberdeen, Scotland, and founding director of the Centre for Spirituality, Health, and Disability at Aberdeen. His other books include Spirituality and Mental Health Care, Resurrecting the Person, and From Bedlam to Shalom. Richard Payne is professor of medicine and divinity at Duke Divinity School and director of the Duke Institute on Care at the End of Life. Stanley Hauer was is Gilbert T. Rowe Professor Emeritus of Divinity and Law at Duke University. Among his many books are Resident Aliens, A Community of Character, Living Gently in a Violent World, and A Cross-Shattered Church.

I found this book to be a very insightful and practical read, good for those who are seeking to learn or to remember the importance of pastoral theology for those who are grieving. The secret...live well.

It reminds me that dying faithfully is as important as living well.

Good text for Ministry of Chaplain
